DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 16, 18-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Taenzer et al, US Patent 6,603,860. Taenzer discloses an apparatus for monitoring magnetic hearing aids comprising the external portion of the hearing aid 18, hearing aid analyzer 90, magnetic-to-acoustic converter 100 (reference receiver system and signal processor), and an inherent output port to the hearing aid.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Art Unit: 2644

Claims 1-15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Crosby et al in view of Lindemann et al, US Patent 6,118,877. Crosby discloses an implantable hearing aid comprising implanted element 3, wearable speech processor 7, interface unit 10 and diagnostic and programming unit 12. The interface unit inherently has an input port, converter system and output for communicating a test communication signal to the implanted element 3. Crosby does not disclose that the input port receives an input signal reflecting a reference acoustical output of an audiometer. Lindemann discloses a hearing aid with in situ testing capability comprising input port 110 and receiver 118. Column 4 lines 8-42 disclose that an external test generator (such as an audiometer) can be coupled to the input port 110 to supply diagnostic test signals to the hearing aid receiver 118. Thus, Lindemann teaches having an input port receiving a reference acoustical output of an audiometer. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of invention to supply the diagnostic signals in the Crosby apparatus from an audiometer, as taught by Lindemann, for the purpose of providing standardized audiological signals to the hearing aid user. Claims 1, 3-7 and 13-15 are met. As to claim 2, the modified Crosby apparatus would incorporate an audiometer as the diagnostic unit 12 which one of ordinary skill in the art would have known necessitated the use of the headphone output module of the audiometer for supply the audiometric signals to the hearing aid. Regarding claims 8 and 9, see column 46 of Crosby. Per claims 10-12, the method claimed is accomplished by the modified Crosby apparatus.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claim 22 is allowed.

Art Unit: 2644

Claims 17 and 21 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
